Connecticut artist Tina Puckett, who sculpts and weaves large basket wall hangings, will display her work at the Prosser Library in Bloomfield through January.

“My woven pieces have varied functions. Some have utility – like the humble egg baskets from New England. A lot of my objects, such as my wall hangers, come from “doodling.” Doodling helps me visualize form and technique,” says Puckett in her artist statement on her Web site.

Her handcrafted pieces include landscapes, flowers, tables, free-form sculptures and baskets. Brilliantly colored, the pieces wrap and snake around themselves to form flowers, clouds and 3-dimensional tree bark.

Her pieces have also been displayed in Woodbury, Litchfield and Chicago. Her pieces can range from $50 to $3,800.
